THE REV. H. D. HOGAN DIES.

For 63 Years He Had Been a Minister of the Methodist Church, South

The Rev. H. D. Hogan, a Confederate veteran of the Civil War and sixty-three years a minister of the Methodist church, South, died yesterday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Goode, two miles south of Overland Park, Kas. Mr. Hogan would have been 90 years old April 29. He was born in Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Hogan had held the distinction of being the only member of Company B, 24th Tennessee regiment, of which he was chaplain, to come out of the Civil War alive. In the Civil War, he served under Generals Hood and Johnston, taking part in important battles in Tennessee and Kentucky. Mr. Hogan was a member of the Southern army that attempted to obstruct Sherman's successful march to the sea.

Ordained a minister in 1867, Mr. Hogan preached in his native state of Tennessee until 1873 when he was sent to Atchison, Kas., to take a charge. In Kansas, he occupied pulpits at Effingham, Council Grove, Hillsdale, Atchison and in the old Rosedale district of Kansas City, Kansas.

He was presiding elder of his church fifteen years in Kansas and Nebraska. Sent to that territory as a sort of missionary to open up the country to Methodism, Mr. Hogan travelled by buggy to hold his camp meetings.

Thirty years ago he took charge of the Walnut Street Methodist church, Early and Walnut streets, Rosedale. The Rosedale assignment was his last active work in the ministry. Twenty-five years ago he retired and had devoted most of his time since then in writing for church publications. He had lived, until a year ago when he went to live with his daughter, at 1411 Southwest boulevard, Kansas City, Kansas.

In 1872, Mr. Hogan married Miss Clara Dill, daughter of Dr. E. W. Dill, well-known physician in old Westport between the years of 1865 and 1872. Mr. Hogan married Miss Dill at Council Grove, where the Dill family had gone to live.

Mr. Hogan is survived also by two sons, Harry W. Hogan, 105 East Forty-ninth street, and Edward J. Hogan, rural route No. 7, Kansas City, Kansas, and three other daughters, Mrs. C. G. Williams, 2914 Seneca street, Kansas City, Kansas; Mrs. D. G. Michalotoulos, Chicago, and Miss Ada Hogan, 105 East Forty-ninth street, and a sister, Mrs. Ella Drumwright, Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Hogan was for twenty years chaplain of Camp No. 80, United Confederate Veterans of Kansas City. His death reduces the number of Confederate veterans in Kansas City to about fifteen, relatives say.
